

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Do you play a musical instrument?

Learning Outcome

Describe situations in written and spoken interactions according to social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What musical instrument do you play or would you like to play?
- If you could be in a band, what type of band would you enjoy being in?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about friendship, relationships, feelings and reactions.
- I can tell stories and anecdotes.
- I can talk about hypothetical situations in the past.

Let's Explore!

I come from a musical family

* When you come from a "musical family", they are all interested in music and can play or sing well.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

I come from a very musical family. My parents believed in starting music lessons at a very early age. All of my brothers and sisters were exceptional musicians. I was not. If my family hadn't been so musical, would I have been subjected to piano lessons? If my teacher hadn't given up on me, would my mother have decided to teach me? If my mother had realized how much I hated playing, would she have released me sooner? Honestly, if I had known from the beginning it could turn out well, I would have been stunned.

I have no love for the piano or music. I remember each lesson as a special torture. I was sitting there, forlorn. I was trying to play Bach. My mother was sitting beside me on the stool, patiently correcting me. Finally, I told her I had no talent. I never knew when I hit a wrong note! My mother was smiling her lovely smile. She said it was fine and that I would learn. I said I was playing without feeling because I felt nothing.

If we had gone on like that much longer, we would have both been miserable. If I hadn't been honest, saying I wanted no more lessons, it would have continued and continued. Then we both realized she hated giving me music lessons as much as I hated taking them. We decided then and there that I wasn't a musician. I am happy to report that I have not touched a musical instrument since!

Let's Practice!

I really wish I didn't have to play the piano.

Instructions: Select the correct option.

1. Which of the following sentences expresses a hypothetical situation in the past?
 - a. Would I have been subjected to piano lessons if my family hadn't been so musical?
 - b. If my mother knew how much I hate playing piano, she wouldn't give me more lessons.
 - c. If I practice enough piano and improve my technique, I will enjoy playing it more.

Let's Practice!

How did George feel about having piano lessons?

Instructions: Read the sentences. Write the missing words. Use miserable, subjected, gave up, motivation, stunned, and disappointing.

1. If we had gone on like that much longer, we would have both been _____.
2. If I had known from the beginning it could turn out well, I would have been _____.
3. Growing up, I was _____ to take piano lessons.
4. Piano lessons were constantly _____ for me.
5. Actually, my teacher _____ on me very quickly.
6. Piano lessons were boring and I didn't have the _____ to improve.

Extension Activity

Tell a story about not being good at something.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Think of a story from your life or from your imagination about not doing something well.
- Write down the main points to the story then add feelings and reactions.
- Decide where you can add sentences with hypothetical situations.
- Now write out your story, talking about events that happened or were happening in the past.
- Read your story to a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I think of a story about not doing something well and write down the main points.

☐ ☐

I add vocabulary for feelings and reactions.

☐ ☐

I use the third conditional in the story.

☐ ☐

I tell events using the Past Simple and the Past Continuous tenses.

☐ ☐

I share my story about not doing something well.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- musical (adjective): with a natural skill or interest in music
e.g. I come from a very musical family.
- to subject (verb): to make someone experience an unpleasant or worrying thing
e.g. I have been subjected to piano lessons.
- to give up (verb): to stop doing something before it is finished e.g. If my teacher hadn't given up on me, would my mother have decided to teach me?
- to release (verb): to allow freedom for someone or something e.g. Would she have released me sooner?
- honestly (adverb): used to emphasize that you are telling the truth
e.g. Honestly, if had known from the beginning it could turn out well, I would have been stunned.
- to stun (verb): to shock or surprise a person so much that he or she is unsure how to react e.g. I would have been stunned.
- torture (noun): an unpleasant experience causing mental or physical pain e.g. I remember each lesson as a special torture.
- miserable (adjective): very unhappy
e.g. We would have both been miserable.

Learning Points

The Simple Present, The Simple Past and The Past Continuous Tenses

When you tell stories and anecdotes, it is common to use a mixture of tenses. That allows you to convey a variety of timelines and action sequences.

You use the Simple Present tense to talk about permanent situations or about things that happen regularly.

*I come from a very musical family.
I remember each lesson as a special torture.
I practice every day.*

You use the Simple Past tense to talk about many kinds of past events: short, quickly finished actions, longer situations and repeated events.

*Finally, I told her I had no talent.
I never knew when I hit a wrong note!*

You use the Past Continuous tense to talk about an action that was happening at a time before now and to describe the background in a story written in the past tense.

I was sitting there, forlorn. I was trying to play Bach. My mother was sitting beside me on the stool, patiently correcting me.

• Remember that you cannot use the Past Continuous tense with “stative” verbs (non-action).

For example:

~~I was loving her.~~

~~She was being there.~~

Examples:

- I have no love for the piano or music.
- I remember each lesson as a special torture.
- I was sitting there, forlorn.
- I was trying to play Bach. My mother was sitting beside me on the stool, patiently correcting me.
- Finally, I told her I had no talent.
- I never knew when I hit a wrong note!
- Mother was smiling her lovely smile.
- She said it was fine and that I would learn.
- I said I was playing without feeling because I felt nothing.

Learning Points

The Third Conditional - Talking Hypothetically About the Past

You use the third conditional to talk about unreal situations in the past. These are things that did not happen in the past. You often use the third conditional to speculate about the past.

When you want to talk about situations in the past in a hypothetical context (not real or necessarily true), you can use the structure would have + past participle.

If my family hadn't been so musical, would I have been subjected to piano lessons?

Look at the chart below for the structure of the third conditional:

Conditional Name	Structure	Example
Third	If + Past Perfect, would have + past participle	If we had gone on like that much longer, we would have both been miserable.

Examples:

- If my family hadn't been so musical, would I have been subjected to piano lessons?
- If my teacher hadn't given up on me, would my mother have decided to teach me?
- If mother had realized how much I hated playing, would she have released me sooner?
- Honestly, if had known from the beginning it could turn out well, I would have been stunned.
- If we had gone on like that much longer, we would have both been miserable.
- If I hadn't been honest, saying I wanted no more lessons, it would have continued and continued.

