

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Does distance make the heart grow fonder?

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Do you think that long distance relationships can work? Why or why not?
- Who from your past has moved away to live in a different city?
- How did you feel about that?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about friendship, relationships, feelings and reactions.
- I can tell stories and anecdotes and talk about experiences I've had or haven't had.
- I can speculate about the past.

Let's Explore!

"Why, Tom," she said. "You've completely changed!"

* You use "why" at the beginning of an observation as an exclamation to show you're going to make a comment.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Tom has always thought of his childhood friend and girlfriend Susanna as his only true love and confidant. Susanna was the most natural person he ever met. She didn't care about her appearance. She was too busy enjoying the world.

Tom has been writing to her faithfully since she moved away with her parents several years ago. Since the moving van pulled away that day, his life has not been the same. He was sure she must have missed him just as much. Admittedly, she may have avoided replying to a letter here and there. She might have said less and less in them, regrettably.

However, she must have known that they were destined to be together just as he did! They may have been divided by distance, but surely she must have felt his love transverse it!

Now, he was going to see Susanna again. She had come to visit her aunt. When he shut his eyes, he could still see her long, red hair and her warm smile.

As soon as he walked into the room, he realized that his Susanna may have been a fabrication. "She's completely changed. She has lost her fun-loving smile", he thought.

She looked at him smiling with strained insincerity. She was dressed elegantly. Her hair was now honey blonde. She gave him a short hug and then stepped back to look at him.

"Why, Tom," she said. "You've completely changed. You haven't got any fun left in you! How have you become such a mundane, studious person?"

Let's Practice!

Tom expresses his feelings about Susanna.

Instructions: Read the sentences. Circle the correct option to complete the sentence.

1. Tom loves her and has been writing to her _____ since she moved away with her parents several years ago.
(faithfully / faith / faintly)
2. _____, she may have avoided replying to a letter here and there.
(Eagerly / Sincerely / Admittedly)
3. She looked at him smiling with strained _____.
(insincere / sincere / insincerity)
4. She must have known they were _____ to be together just as he did!
(destined / destination / meaning)
5. How have you become such a mundane, _____ person?
(studious / studying / studies)

Let's Practice!

Tom has missed Susanna since the day she left.

Instructions: Match the two parts of the sentences from Column A to Column B.

COLUMN A

1. Tom has always thought
2. She looked at him
3. Tom has been writing
4. Since the moving van pulled away that day,
5. As soon as he walked into the room,

COLUMN B

- a. smiling with strained insincerity.
- b. he realized that his Susanna may have been a fabrication.
- c. his life has not been the same.
- d. of his childhood friend and girlfriend Susanna as his only true love.
- e. to her faithfully since she moved away with her parents several years ago.

Extension Activity

Write about a lost love.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Think about someone you knew and loved when you were younger. Imagine they moved away.
- How might things have been if they had stayed in your city?
- How could your relationship have grown (or would it)?
- Where could you and this person be today?
- Write a story talking about experiences that you have or haven't had.
- Speculate about the past.
- Read your story to a partner.
- Check together for spelling and grammar mistakes.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I write about someone I knew who moved away.

☐ ☐

I use perfect modals to speculate on what might have happened.

☐ ☐

I talk about experiences using the Past Simple and the Present Perfect tenses.

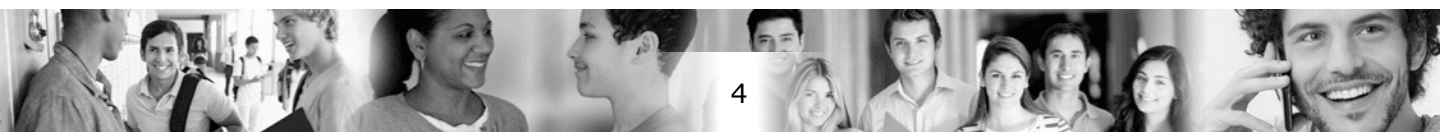

☐ ☐

I share my story with a partner then check for spelling and grammar mistakes.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- admittedly (adverb): used when someone agrees that something is true, although they don't want to e.g. Admittedly, she may have avoided replying to a letter here and there.
- regrettably (adverb): expressing apology for or sadness at something e.g. She might have said less and less in them, regrettably.
- destined (adjective): controlled by fate; something which is meant to happen e.g. She must have known they were destined to be together just as he did!
- to transverse (verb): to move across e.g. She must have felt his love transverse it!
- fun-loving (adjective): used to describe a person who enjoys engaging in activities which are enjoyable, amusing and entertaining e.g. She has lost her fun-loving smile.
- fabrication (noun): a deceptive creation
e.g. He realized that his Susanna may have been a fabrication.
- insincerity (noun): the feeling of pretending to feel something that you do not really feel, or not meaning what you say e.g. She looked at him smiling with strained insincerity.
- mundane (adjective): very ordinary; not interesting
e.g. How have you become such a mundane person?
- studious (adjective): focused on studying and paying attention to small details e.g. Why have you become such a studious person?

Learning Points

The Present Perfect Tense vs. The Simple Past Tense

You use the Present Perfect tense to talk about a past action or an action that began in the past that is connected to the present in some way.

You use the Simple Past tense to talk about many kinds of past events: short, quickly finished actions, longer situations and repeated events.

You can use the Present Perfect tense to talk about experience.

When you use the Present Perfect tense, you think about the past and present together. There is some connection between what happened in the past and now.

For example:

I have learned English. = I learned English in the past and now I can speak English.

He has bought a painting. = He bought the painting in the past and now he has a painting.

It is common to use for and since when referring to time periods in the Present Perfect:

- You use FOR to talk about how long an action has been happening (a week, two days, five hours, six years, etc.)
- You use SINCE to talk about when the action started (2010, Monday, she was a child)

Since the moving van pulled away that day, his life has not been the same.

Usually, when you use the Simple Past tense, the time of the finished action is clear from the context or explicitly mentioned in the sentence.

For example:

Yesterday, I went to the store.

She moved away with her parents several years ago.

It is clear when the action occurred. In this sentence we would not use the Present Perfect. (~~Yesterday, I have been to the store.~~)

Examples:

- Tom has always thought of his childhood friend and girlfriend Susanna as his only true love and confidant.
- Susanna was the most natural person he ever met. She didn't care about her appearance. She was too busy enjoying the world.

Learning Points

- She moved away with her parents several years ago.
- Since the moving van pulled away that day, his life has not been the same.
- She's completely changed. She has lost her fun-loving smile.
- She looked at him smiling with strained insincerity. She was dressed elegantly.
- She gave him a short hug and then stepped back to look at him.

Speculating About the Past

You can use modals to talk about degrees of certainty and speculate about things in the past.

You use them to describe what is definite, probable, possible, or impossible from the speaker's point of view.

You can use must, may, might, and could to describe degrees of certainty.

You can use modals with the Present Perfect to talk about the possibility of a past event that is not clear in the present context.

Example:

She must have known they were destined to be together just as he did!

Look at the chart for the meanings of modals when speculating about the past:

Modal Phrase	Meaning
Must have	It is very likely
May have Might have Could have	It is possible

- May have has a slightly stronger meaning than might have or could have.
- You can add not to make a negative speculation (It may not have been true).

Examples:

- He was sure she must have missed him just as much.
- Admittedly, she may have avoided replying to a letter here and there.
- She might have said less and less in them, regrettably.
- However, she must have known they were destined to be together just as he did! They may have been divided by distance, but surely she must have felt his love transverse it!
- As soon as he walked into the room, he realized that his Susanna may have been a fabrication.

